29 FEARED DEAD AS BIG SHIP FALLS

SAFE FLYING, DID IT

Flivver Plane Pilots Back To Starting Point

TETERBORO, N. J., Dec. 10—Two dare-devil fliers who piloted a pair of featherweight "flivver planes" around the world completed their 24,500-mile flight at the Teterboro airport today—four months and one day after their original take-off.

The fliers, George W. Truman and Clifford V. Evans, were greeted by their wives, a band and a number of Army officials from the eastern area. Later, they are to be escorted to New York City for an official greeting from Mayor William O'Dwyer.

The tiny Piper Cubs had taken off from the Harrisburg, Pa.,

airport early today on the home stretch of their flight.

THEY HAD EXPECTED to cover in one hour and 20 minutes the final 140-mile leg of their air tour which returned them to Teterboro, N. J., the point of their initial take-off.

The fliers landed at the Harrisburg airport yesterday following a 375-mile hop from Dayton, Ohio. They were paraded through the city, feted by officials and veterans' groups and presented on a nationwide radio program.

Truman said they were pleased with the success of their flight which was designed to prove "the desirability and feasibility of light aircraft" and "to show what safe flying can do."

The former Army flight instructors had no definite plans for the end of the trip. Truman said they hoped to write a book and make a lecture tour to promote private flying.

"All you need to know is your limitations," Truman asserted. "You can get in trouble with a horse and buggy, you know."

Lutherans Top Goal In Feeding 272 Children

Contributions toward the Lutheran church's World Action movement has netted the Circleville parish $1,906-$401 more than the local church's goal of $1,500, the Rev. George L. Troutman, pastor, reported Wednesday.

The campaign was sponsored to provide 500 supplementary calories daily to each of 272 school age children in war-torn Europe.

Rev. Mr. Troutman explained that the fund will feed the 272 children during all of the winter months.

Meals will consist of cereals, dried peas and beans, fats, powdered milk and cheese. The children will be fed this supplementary ration between classes at school.

THE COST of providing each child 500 calories per day, making it possible for him to survive the winter months, is estimated at $7.

Rev. Mr. Troutman, in commenting on the church's child feeding program, stated: "What other bridge than this of love between the people of the world can be built so inexpensively and be so enduring."

No Isolationists In GI School For Art Of Bartending

MIAMI, Dec. 10—What this country needs today is an educated bartender, in the opinion, apparently, of your Uncle Sam.

The old man with the whiskers has been footing the bills nearly two years now for veterans at the Florida School of Mixology.

Several hundred vets—from privates to a lieutenant general—have attended the school under the GI Bill of Rights.

The Anti-Saloon League has recently opened a drive against the use of federal funds for bartenders' schools.

Students' Latin and Greek may not improve any during the four weeks strenuous course, but when through they have mastered the art of loosening the tongue in 120 different flavors.

Nathan Deitelbaum, director of school, who sold the board of education and hence the federal government on the idea, reports such success that plans are underway to open branches throughout the country.

Head instructor at the school is Lieut. Col. William A. Fulmer, ret., who has had 20 years experience in the art of mixology.

He also saw service in two world wars. In the last he was an instructor in mathematics and military law.

Today he stands in the center of the "class room," pipe in hand, directing and offering such suggestions as:

"You must get a high collar on that drink, boys."

Bartending is no mean task

these days, as the world becomes smaller and smaller.

No bartender can be an isolationist today. He must know how to mix the favorite drink of patrons from New Orleans to Potsdam.

Deitelbaum says there are 75 basic drinks, with variations reaching 120—requirements for graduation from the school.

Ag Society Electing 7 Directors

Results Of Poll Due Saturday

Seven new directors of the Pickaway County Agricultural Society will be determined after members have cast ballots which are to be counted Saturday.

Tom D. Harmon, secretary-manager for the society, said Wednesday that of the seven directors, two will be from Circleville and the remaining five from the county's townships.

They will serve terms of three years. Sixteen other directors are not up for election.

According to state regulations, there must be two nominees for each position.

Harmon said final tabulation should be completed Saturday evening when the nominating committee, which also serves as election tabulators, completes its tally in the council chamber, Circleville city building.

A TOTAL of 775 members of the society are eligible for the balloting, Harmon said, adding that 50 other members would not ballot since they are not residents of the county.

Harmon said a formal meeting of the society probably would be called for sometime next week for a routine business meeting.

In all probability a committee, which has been at work recently, will announce a proposed date for the 1948 Pickaway County Fair. This proposal will be forwarded to the state department of agriculture for approval. In the past, the fair here has been held the second week of September.

The present officers are: Ben H. Gordon, president; Russell C. Palm, vice-president; Ned H.

Poll Curb Of Commies Planned

WASHINGTON, Dec. 10—A congressional group disclosed today that legislation to outlaw the Communist party from the election ballot will be considered next month.

Rep. Lecompte (R) Iowa, chairman of the house administration committee announced he will open hearings when congress reconvenes in regular session on a bill to prevent the party from participating in national, state or local elections.

The bill, introduced by Rep. Cole (R) Mo., would deny the right to participate in any election to any political party "directly or indirectly affiliated" with the Communist movement.

Cole reported that the American Legion has agreed to appear at the hearing to support the legislation. He said that Attorney General Tom Clark and FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover also will be asked to testify on the proposal.

COLE, a member of the house administration committee, questioned whether the Un-American (Continued on Page Two)

CITY SQUARE HAS NEW LOOK

Sidewalk Superintendents Eye Cathedral

CLEVELAND, Dec. 10—For more than a year, members of the "Sidewalk Superintendents' Society" of Downtown Cleveland have been witnessing and appraising what even the oldest resident has never seen before—the erection of a Catholic cathedral.

It has been 100 years since the first Catholics migrated to the Cuyahoga Valley and established a diocese.

Dedication ceremonies of the new St. John's, built over the skeleton walls of its predecessor, is expected to take place close to the 100th anniversary of the old cathedral.

Modern construction methods have cut decades off the time for such a project. Officials expect that the edifice will be completed and ready for services in April, 1948, after less than two years of razing and rebuilding.

THE COST of renovating "Cathedral Square" is estimated at nearly one million dollars.

Architect Robert W. Stickle, Jr., said that "this is the only cathedral in America that compares in every respect with the liturgy of a cathedral as prescribed in Rome."

The reason older Catholic churches did not have to be built to ecclesiastical specifications is that prior to 1931, the United States was classified as a mission country.

To the man in the street, the outstanding feature of the structure is the ornate tower, 180 feet from the ground, with its copper-covered spire pointing a gold cross toward the heavens.

The new St. John's is not the biggest building in Cleveland, but it is one of the most impressive. It combines the newness of crab orchard stone with the antiquity and reverence of gothic architecture.

In the remodeled group are the cathedral and rectory building, followed by the chancery, the sisters college, and the sisters chapel.

The four buildings that make up the square have given Cleveland a "new look."

Skymaster Down In Labrador

24 Passengers Aboard Plane

ST. JOHN'S, NFLD., Dec. 10—A huge, four-motored Air Transport Command plane crashed and burned in the snow-covered wilderness north of Goose Bay, Labrador, last night, and U. S. Army authorities said there were 29 passengers and crewmen aboard.

Whether anyone survived was not known immediately.

Although ATC officials at Westover Field, Mass., and Washington, D. C., said they believed only five crewmen were aboard, Gen. J. Haynes, commanding officer at Fort Pepperell, St. Johns, received word from Goose Bay there were 29 on the plane.

The plane went down in a fiery heap in an inaccessible region 8-1/2 miles north of Goose Bay.

The destination of the plane—a C-54 Skymaster—could not be determined immediately with one report saying it was en route to Westover Field, the ATC base, and another indicating it was on a "routine flight."

ATC officers at Westover and Washington explained that a C-54 normally carried a crew of five, indicating that the remaining 24 persons were passengers. But neither had any word about "passengers."

WITH POOR weather hampering aerial observation of the scattered and burned wreckage, reports at Westover Field and Washington varied on survivors. Westover received word there were "no known survivors," while Washington ATC dispatches indicated there were.

Medical men and rescue teams, traveling by dog sled, left Goose Bay early this morning in a dramatic fight against time to reach the scene. Simultaneously, the ATC ordered a helicopter rushed to Goose Bay to assist in rescue operations.

Because of the rugged terrain and the heavy snowfalls of the past several weeks, the ground parties were not expected to reach the wreckage for hours.

The Army announced today at Westover Field receipt of a radio message from Goose Bay which said that ground rescue teams have left for the (Continued on Page Two)

Nasty Weather Coming To Ohio

A mixture of rain, snow and sleet was moving into Ohio today from the southwest.

Sleet and snow already was falling this morning in Cincinnati and other parts of Southern Ohio. Streets and highways were reported slick and hazardous in many places.

Weathermen said the moisture-laden mass of southern air would engulf the entire state by late this afternoon.

They said there would be considerable precipitation, but whether it would be rain or snow depended on the action of the mercury.

Temperatures were moderating, but still were well below the freezing point this morning. Observers said the Cleveland area would get about two inches of snow, with the precipitation falling in larger amounts in the central and southern areas.

The mercury was expected to climb above the freezing point this afternoon, with conditions remaining mild through tomorrow. Another shot of cold temperatures is forecast for Friday.

Kiernan's ONE MAN'S OPINION

It's just like old times with Durocher managing Brooklyn again, marrying Laraine Day again, talking again.

"Forever Amber" is being revised again—this time it will come out "Hardly Ever Amber."

Molotov is squawking again. Rome has been marched on again. Dewey is running again. Things are getting trite all over.

The only deviations from trend recently have been Jersey Joe Walcott and Rue de la Paix Robert Schuman. And the experts said neither of them would last four rounds.

Walcott has to fight again but Schuman won on points. Unless De Gaulle meets him in an alley.

G. E. "Gus" Hill, 37, farmer living near Laurelville, was indicted by a federal grand jury at Columbus Tuesday for operating an illegal still in an abandoned house on his 123-acre farm in Perry township, Hocking county.

Arraignment of Hill is scheduled for Friday before U. S. District Judge Mel G. Underwood.

He was arrested Oct. 31 by agents of the federal alcohol tax unit and of the Ohio liquor department who discovered they confiscated 50 gallons of whisky and mash and destroyed a 100-gallon copper still on the Hill farm.

GOP Plans Ignoring New Curbs

WASHINGTON, Dec. 10.—Sen. Taft (R) Ohio, declared today that congress will extend the present export control law before Christmas but "ignore" the administration's broad request for allocation and rationing powers to combat inflation.

The senate GOP policy chairman termed the administration's allocation-priority-export control bill, submitted Tuesday, another bid for wartime powers. Taft's statement was made as:

1. Senate-house Republican leaders sat down to iron out their own anti-inflation program, keyed on voluntary allocations and including renewed export controls.

2. The senate banking committee met to give expected approval to legislation restoring installment credit controls.

Truman Plan Facing Stiff Opposition

House May Cut Relief Funds

WASHINGTON, Dec. 10.—The administration's European relief program faces its most crucial test in the house today when attempts will be made to slash still further the 597 million dollars requested by President Truman.

Rep. Halleck (R) Ind., majority leader, said he is confident that once the amount is decided the house will pass the necessary legislation.

He anticipated final passage by nightfall. The measure then goes to a joint house-senate conference committee, as the senate last week approved its own bill.

The house today is meeting for its fifth day of consideration of the legislation with administration supporters holding the line against "crippling" amendments.

The battle centers around efforts by opponents to reduce still further the relief funds, while supporters hope to restore the cuts already made.

WHILE THE senate has approved the full amount requested by the administration for France, Italy and Austria, to be used through March 31, the house foreign affairs committee (Continued on Page Two)

Poisoned Tea Is Discovered

COLUMBUS, Dec. 10.—Columbus residents used caution today in the purchase of peppermint leaves for medicinal tea.

The Pure Food and Drug Administration warned possible buyers yesterday that peppermint leaves had inadvertently been mixed with harmful drugs by a Peoria, Ill., manufacturer.

One shipment containing the poisonous preparation has been received by a Columbus distributor and already much has been sold by retailers.

The leaves were described as containing drugs but the only drug identified was the powerful belladonna.

A tester there said: "Two tablespoons of the leaves in water could be fatal and one tablespoon represents five times the average medicinal dose."

French Refuse Red Trade Note

PARIS, Dec. 10.—The French government refused today to accept yesterday's Soviet note cancelling trade talks and the 1945 repatriation agreement, and termed it "inadmissible."

The abrupt dip in Franco-Soviet relations led to speculation of a possible diplomatic rupture because of the obviously mutual anger in both Paris and Moscow.

A special cabinet meeting presided over by President Vincent Auriol considered the serious situation, but reacted vigorously by instructing the French charge d'affaires in Moscow to hand back the note.

There is nothing to indicate that any diplomatic breach will result from French initiative. Many observers likewise felt such initiative unlikely from Moscow, whose press today began attacking the French.

cut the sum to 590 million dollars while allocating 60 million dollars for China. This reduced the funds for Europe by 67 million dollars.

Republican leaders anticipate that the amount would be cut to 500 million dollars. Rep. Smith (R) Wis. plans to offer an amendment to reduce it to that sum.

Rep. Jonkman (R) Mich., is slated to submit another amendment reducing the funds to 290 million and this is expected to be countered with other amendments restoring the full amount.

Rep. Vorys (R) Ohio, who is piloting the relief bill through the house, predicted defeat for an amendment by Rep. Andresen (R) Minn. requiring free distribution of two-thirds of the food supplies sent overseas by the Red Cross or other charitable and church organizations.

Vorys said Basil O'Connor, American Red Cross chairman, has advised the committee that his group cannot handle the program, but it is reported that Andresen will counter this with the suggestion that the Salvation Army and church organizations be given the task.

Meanwhile, the house has written into the bill, with the backing of the foreign affairs committee, provisions establishing price ceilings on relief supplies purchased at home and abroad.

Partition Asked In Trump Case

A suit for partition of real estate was filed in Pickaway county common pleas court Wednesday by Donald M. Trump in an action concerning Union street property valued at $16,000.

Ten defendants named in the petition are Frederick Trump and Harry Trump, both of Circleville, RFD; Martin Trump, Lakewood; Jane Rawlston and Mary Rawlston, both of New Concord; Richard Trump, Williamsport, RFD; Sarah C. Cooper, Wadsworth, RFD; Edith Muma, Springfield, RFD; John A. Trump, Route 8 Hamilton; and Eva Fischer as executrix of the estate of Mrs. Magdalena Trump, Circleville.

The property involved was owned by Martin Trump, Sr., who died in 1915. His widow, Magdalena, died in October, 1947. Most of defendants, as well as the plaintiff, are descendants of Magdalena Trump. The latter was bequeathed a life estate in the property. Martin Trump, Sr., stipulated that upon her death, the property was to pass to children of their heirs.

The petition says Jacob Barthelmas died April 10, 1944, and that on Aug. 23, 1943, at a public sale conducted by Sheriff Charles Radcliff, two tracts of Wayne township land totaling about 236 acres were sold for $23,415.04 to William J. Barthelmas.

The sale was the result of a partition suit instituted by Regina E. Hudnell against Jacob Barthelmas.

The petition further says that on Sept. 3, 1943 Jacob Barthelmas paid the amount in full, $23,415.04 to the sheriff, and the latter executed a deed conveying the property to William J. Barthelmas.

IT IS ALLEGED by the executors of the estate of Jacob Barthelmas that there was an agreement that William J. Barthelmas would either repay Jacob Barthelmas the full purchase price or would transfer title to the property to him and that there was thus created and engrafted upon the deed a resulting trust for the benefit of Jacob Barthelmas.

The executors ask, in the petition, that if the court cannot find and declare the resulting trust it declare a lien in favor of the estate and against the defendants.

attention "before Christmas," Taft asserted:

"WE'LL GO ahead with our bill to extend the present export control law in the special session."

But as to the proposed authority to allocate and ration food, fuel, steel and other basic items, the GOP leader said:

"They'll be ignored. The administration is just asking for complete powers—the same powers they had during the war under the Second War Powers Act and which we took away."

The Republican strategy appears to be one of pushing through the simple export control extension so Democrats will have to bear the responsibility for delay if they try to add the rationing powers on the senate floor.

Contrary to Taft, however, Sen. Cooper (R) Ky., judiciary subcommittee chairman handling the bill, said he thinks the whole problem will have to be considered as one. Cooper sees little chance of action on export controls before congress recesses Dec. 19 because of Harriman's addition of allocations to the export measure.

Taft said he still hopes to have the Republican anti-inflation program ready for consideration this week by a conference of all GOP senators, probably Friday.

Youth Week Set By Ministers

The Circleville Ministerial Association Monday selected a committee to plan an overall participation of Circleville churches to observe Youth Week, starting January 25th.

The three-man committee is composed of the Rev. Donald Mitchell, pastor of the Presbyterian church; the Rev. James A. Herbst, pastor of Calvary EUB church, and the Rev. Elisha Kneisley, pastor of First Methodist church.

Tentative plans have been made for a banquet and a mass meeting to be held during that week for members of the various youth organizations of Circleville's churches.

Each church, in addition to its participation in the programs, will have individual youth programs on the Sundays preceding and following Youth Week.

$50 Reward Is Offered

A $50 dollar reward was offered Wednesday for information leading to conviction of the persons who removed four steel I-beams from the warehouse yard of John Eshelman on or about the 19th of November. The reward is not to come from city funds, Police Chief William McCrady said.

The beams, two of which were 17 feet long, and two of which were 13 feet long, were valued at $1.35 a foot.

Truck, Auto In Accident

A Pickerington creamery truck, operated by Carl Bowers, Pickerington, and the car of Gale Barthelmas, 593 East Main street, collided Tuesday morning on East Mound street, near Anderson's grocery.

According to police, Barthelmas attempted to pass the truck on the wrong side as the truck made a right turn into an alley. Minor damage was reported.

If the temperature of the earth were 200 or more degrees below zero Centigrade, the whole atmosphere would be liquid.

cut the sum to 500 million dollars while allocating 60 million dollars for China. This reduced the funds for Europe by 67 million dollars.

Republican leaders anticipate that the amount would be cut to 500 million dollars. Rep. Smith (R) Wis. plans to offer an amendment to reduce it to that sum.

Rep. Jonkman (R) Mich., is slated to submit another amendment reducing the funds to 290 million and this is expected to be countered with other amendments restoring the full amount.

Rep. Vorys (R) Ohio, who is piloting the relief bill through the house, predicted defeat for an amendment by Rep. Andresen (R) Minn. requiring free distribution of two-thirds of the food supplies sent overseas by the Red Cross or other charitable and church organizations.

Vorys said Basil O'Connor, American Red Cross chairman, has advised the committee that his group cannot handle the program, but it is reported that Andresen will counter this with the suggestion that the Salvation Army and church organizations be given the task.

Meanwhile, the house has written into the bill, with the backing of the foreign affairs committee, provisions establishing price ceilings on relief supplies purchased at home and abroad.

Partition Asked In Trump Case

A suit for partition of real estate was filed in Pickaway county common pleas court Wednesday by Donald M. Trump in an action concerning Union street property valued at $16,000.

Ten defendants named in the petition are Frederick Trump and Harry Trump, both of Circleville, RFD; Martin Trump, Lakewood; Jane Rawlston and Mary Rawlston, both of New Concord; Richard Trump, Williamsport, RFD; Sarah C. Cooper, Wadsworth, RFD; Edith Muma, Springfield, RFD; John A. Trump, Route 8 Hamilton; and Eva Fischer as executrix of the estate of Mrs. Magdalena Trump, Circleville.

The property involved was owned by Martin Trump, Sr., who died in 1915. His widow, Magdalena, died in October, 1947. Most of defendants, as well as the plaintiff, are descendants of Magdalena Trump. The latter was bequeathed a life estate in the property. Martin Trump, Sr., stipulated that upon her death, the property was to pass to children of their heirs.

The identities of the dead men were withheld pending notification to the next of kin. Their bodies were reported to have been charred so badly that identification was difficult.

The petition says Jacob Barthelmas died April 10, 1944, and that on Aug. 23, activities committee would have jurisdiction over his bill. He asserted that power to pass on election legislation was vested in the administration group when it absorbed the elections committee under the reorganization act.

He declared he will press for early action.

The Missouri congressman commented: "The bill in my opinion is sound and in line with the constitution because the latter provides that the federal government shall guarantee every state a republican form of government."

"I don't believe anyone can contend that the policies of the Communist party are aimed at a republican form of government."

Rep. Nixon (R) Calif., chairman of the un-American activities legislative subcommittee, asserted however, that the bill would not accomplish its purpose of curbing Communism.

He claimed that it would confuse the issue by clashing with states rights and added: "THE MAIN mistake in the purpose of the bill is that the danger of Communism to a country is not on the ballot but in the party's other fields of activities. In none of the countries which have fallen to the Communists in Russia was the coup accomplished by the Communists on a political ballot."

Nixon also observed that by permitting Communists to run for office on an open ballot, many of the party followers are labelled plainly.

6 Disabled Men Seek Jobs Here

Ohio ranked third in the nation in the number of jobs found for handicapped workers during October when employment of disabled persons was geared to observance of "National Employ the Physically Handicapped Week". Charles C. Thomas, manager of the Ohio State Employment Service office in Circleville said Wednesday.

Thomas said that although the OSES office in Circleville participated in the campaign to procure jobs for the handicapped, his office received job applications from only six handicapped persons and that employment was found for most of these.

The drive to aid handicapped in October provided the spark which lifted the total number of jobs found for the handicapped in October to 48,000 throughout the nation. Ohio, which accounted for 2,168 of these jobs was second only to New York and Texas. Of the 2,168 Ohio total, 1,067 jobs went to disabled veterans, Thomas said.

The 1947 campaign in behalf of the handicapped was the third in three years and was the most successful in Ohio and in other states.

THE OSES placed handicapped men and women in more than 250 different types of jobs. Handicapped persons, veterans and non-veterans, became clerks, truck drivers, carpenters, draftsmen, cooks, printers, riveters, waitresses and engineers.

Frank J. Collopy, state administrator of the Bureau of Unemployment Compensation, of which the OSES is one division, praised Ohio's newspapers for "the genuinely fine service they rendered in aiding the handicapped workers".

Lighted Mantle Wreath Gives Yule Greeting

An unusual and attractive mantle arrangement will not only enhance your holiday home, but also will be a gentle reminder to all who see it of the deeper significance of Christmas.

Framed in a wreath of evergreens, the small Della Robbia plaque of the Child whose birth was heralded by a star, becomes almost life-like when illuminated.

The wreath is accented with light from a 25-watt inside-frosted bulb hidden behind a mound of angel's hair. Another small candelabra base lamp, imbedded in the bottom of the wreath, makes the plaque luminous. Tiny choir boy figurines flank each side of the snow mound.

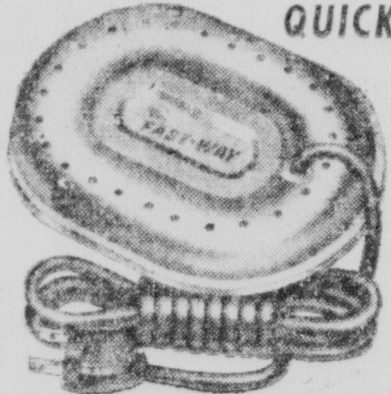

The wreath is fashioned with the same careful detail of the ornamental Della Robbia border.

MINIATURE fruits, tiny kumquats, berries and cherries, mingle with the evergreen in true Robbia manner. (They are fastened to the greens with thin wire.)

Make the wreath yourself or, if you lack time and patience, buy one from your local garden center. (General Electric lighting specialists who worked out this unusual arrangement, found that many garden clubs make these wreaths for sale during the holidays.)

For a finishing touch, add candles in graduated sizes, angel's hair and evergreen to each side of the mantle.

Ohio Hybrid Seed Corn Supply Reported 'Scarce But Ample'

COLUMBUS, Dec. 10—Scarce, but ample! That's the report on the supply of hybrid seed corn available to Ohio farmers for next season, according to Dr. David F. Beard, extension agronomist at Ohio State university.

Explaining the apparent contradiction of his report, Beard says it means that early purchasers will have no difficulty, but those who delay may have to select a grade size that will require special planter plates.

But sufficient hybrid seed is available to plant the entire 1948 corn acreage. With a favorable season in 1948, that means a yield large enough to expand food output.

This year's backward season resulted in a smaller hybrid seed corn acreage than originally planned. But favorable weather in August and September, permitting most of the seed corn to mature before frost, largely offset the poor start. However, combined reductions in acreage and yield mean a total production 15 to 20 per cent less than last year.

OHIO'S EXPERIENCE, it is pointed out, is in contrast to that of the western states, also with poor yields. There a good start was offset later by drought.

This year's yield of Ohio Certified seed corn is supplemented by a larger-than-normal reserve from the big, high-quality crop of 1946, when a record number of acres were devoted to hybrid seed production. Dr. Beard reports that Ohio agricultural experiment station tests show 100 percent safety in using seed carried over from one season to the next under proper conditions.

The current season, according to Beard, has presented an important test for 100 percent hybrid utilization—and the test has been passed "with flying colors."

Now that farmers depend on a few specialized producers for the new hybrid seed required each year instead of selecting seed from any crib or corn field, a single year's seed failure might bring disastrous results in the form of scarce, high-priced food the following year.

But the hybrid seed corn industry has shown its ability to overcome the handicaps of unfavorable seasons. With the protection of last year's reserves, the outlook for next season is a favorable one, in contrast to the experience in 1918 when most Ohio farmers had to use imported seed of poorly-adapted, open-pollinated varieties. Dr. Beard reports.

NORTH AFRICAN FUTURE

NORTH AFRICA could become the granary of Europe, says Thomas D. Campbell in the New York Times. This former brigadier general, said to be the largest individual wheat grower in the world, who has now returned to his Hardin, Mont., home, is entitled to be heard with respect. The soil and climate are not unlike those of our wheat-growing West. Modern methods of cultivation are all that is needed.

North Africa was once essentially a part of Europe. Under the Roman empire the Mediterranean was a mere lake. The coming of Mohammedanism turned it into a boundary between two different and hostile civilizations, causing the African side of the line to lag far behind the European. The French conquest of Algeria and Tunis, and later of Morocco, were steps in the restoration of Africa to the European sphere of life. An even greater change would come from the reclamation of the desert, and the establishment of a fertile grain-producing land.

PIG MADE TO ORDER

MORE HAMS for less corn. The kind of pig that fills this kind of order has just been exhibited proudly by a Minnesota farmer who grew him, at the International Livestock Show in Chicago. The breed has achieved that new look for porkers, so much desired, which is a long, lean silhouette with heavier hind quarters—hams to you. He has produced more meat per pound of the feed per pound than any other kind of hog.

The American foreign aid program calls for increasing food supplies and for cutting down grain consumption. Right then along comes a farmer with a pig who does just that. It does seem as if the American farmer can do anything!

CARELESSNESS

WHEN THIS vigorous young nation of ours plays, it certainly makes a job of it. Too often the end of a holiday is grief. A report of the recent Thanksgiving holiday showed that more than a hundred lives were lost in the merry-making, most of them in traffic accidents.

It is fine for old and young alike to work and play, and we Americans have usually preferred games that demand considerable energy—which is as it should be. But it is dreadful to wake up after the celebration of a jolly festival and face the cold fact that more than a hundred persons have lost their lives by carelessness and over-exertion. The cost is certainly too great.

Though there is no essential connection, the disclosures regarding Maj. Gen. Bennett E. Meyers and his speculations have done no good to the bill providing compulsory military training. Justly or unjustly many, especially ex-GIs, feel that an officer's misdeeds get covered up, while an ordinary soldier gets the book thrown at him.

Inside WASHINGTON

Doubt Congress Will Act Now on Price Proposals | Probers See No Flinging In Aviation Industry, Itself

Special to Central Press

WASHINGTON—It now appears doubtful if the special session will act on any of President Truman's 10 proposals to beat the high cost of living.

Chief reasons for probable delayed action until the regular session, which opens Jan. 6 are: 1—General controversy over most of Mr. Truman's proposals, particularly a return to price control and rationing. 2—Desire by GOP-controlled congressional committees to hold full hearings on most of the program points. 3—Revolt of "freshman" senators against the leadership of Senator Robert A. Taft, GOP policy director.

Originally, revival of installment buying controls and export restrictions were considered certain of immediate approval. Even these are now doubtful as opposition to the first named has appeared from bankers, auto dealers and luxury trades and a proposal by Commerce Secretary W. Averell Harriman for an enlarged export control enforcement staff is sure to cause prolonged debate.

The GOP "first-termers" contend the GOP leadership should take an aggressive position on price curbs and that Taft has not done so.

CLEAN WINGS—The Bennett Meyers case has spotlighted the aircraft industry in the biggest war profits scandal uncovered to date because Meyers' financial dealings were in aviation stocks and companies.

Investigating authorities state daily, however, that the industry itself, in building the greatest air force in history, will not be found guilty of anything more serious than honest errors committed amidst the rush of the greatest manufacturing expansion ever known.

George E. Sokolsky's

These Days

On April 24, 1946, subsequent to Poland becoming a puppet of Soviet Russia, the Export-Import bank, an agency of the government of the United States, with the consent of the State department, made a loan to Poland of $40,000,000 and extended further credits to Poland of $50,000,000 to purchase surplus American property held in Europe. These loans, amounting to $90,000,000 were unsecured.

At the time the loan was made, the State department issued the following explanation:

"It has been and will continue to be the policy of the United States government to assist the Polish people in their valiant efforts to overcome the destruction and devastation of the war. . . In the view of this government, however, economic freedom and political freedom are interdependent, and for that reason, this government has made it clear on numerous occasions that the election commitments undertaken by Poland at Yalta and Potsdam must be fulfilled in their entirety. It remains true today, as it was when that pledge was first given, that for the Polish people to achieve their goals of freedom and democracy, they must be given the opportunity freely to elect a government which represents the will of the Polish people."

Poland, in spite of this $90,000,000, did not live up to its "election commitments," instead, Poland has gone through a political terror, has become a police state, utterly and completely dominated by Soviet Russia. Still, they got the credit of $90,000,000.

Now we come to November, 1947. There is no longer any doubt as to the character of the government of Poland. There is no longer any doubt that Poland's coal during 1946-1947 was shipped into Soviet Russia, even depriving the Poles. Nevertheless, the United States shipped locomotives to Poland—made of American steel at a time when we suffer from a steel shortage and Secretary of Commerce Averell Harriman proposes rationing steel for American consumption.

The Polish credit is to be used as follows, according to the Export-Import bank:

Steam locomotives, including spare parts, $16,000,000; machine tools and similar equipment for railway repair shops and track maintenance, $15,000,000; coal mining equipment, $5,000,000; railway communications equipment, $4,000,000.

Acting Secretary of State Lovett makes this point that the credit of $40,000,000 to Poland was for the purpose of helping that country to purchase coal cars and locomotives in the United States in order to facilitate the transportation of coal from Poland to Western Europe and the Balkans.

A further excuse seems to be that the steam locomotive manufacturers need a subsidy and this is one way to give it to them. In other words, what seems to be an obsolescent industry is to be kept alive by shipping our irreplaceable steel abroad.

This is the argument.

"... we (the Export-Import bank) were informed by locomotive manufacturers in the United States that, although their plants could produce approximately 1,800 steam locomotives per year, they had orders from U. S. railroads for only 80 steam locomotives. It is our understanding that this situation has not materially changed and that, although the locomotive manufacturers have a considerable backlog of orders from U. S. railways for diesel locomotives, they are desperately in need of orders to keep the plants in which they produce steam locomotives in operation."

DIET AND HEALTH

When the Thyroid Gland Becomes Enlarged

By HERMAN N. RUNDEN, M.D.

THE thyroid gland may become enlarged from a good many different causes but, whatever the cause, such an enlargement is known to the doctor as goiter of one type or another. Fortunately, the most common sort is not serious in its effects if proper treatment is given at the start. This type of goiter occurs in growing girls and pregnant women, probably because at these periods there is a demand for an increased amount of the thyroid gland secretion.

The chief ingredient of the thyroid gland secretion is iodine; thus, in treating this enlargement, it is suggested that the patient take iodine in some form prescribed by the physician. Even more important, perhaps, would be the regular use of iodized salt to help prevent goiters of this type.

Simple Enlargement
Sometimes patients with these simple enlargements of the thyroid gland show symptoms of hypothyroidism or lack of thyroid secretion. These symptoms may include gain in weight, thinning of the hair, dryness of the hair and skin, fatigue and constipation. If these symptoms develop, it may be necessary for the patient to take thyroid extract in doses which the physician prescribes.

The test known as the basal metabolism test is helpful in determining whether or not hypothyroidism is present. This test is carried out by having the patient breathe oxygen from a tank and measuring the amount of oxygen used up in a given period of time.

In hypothyroidism, oxygen is used at a slower rate than normally.

When Lump Forms

Sometimes a lump forms in the thyroid gland. Such lumps or nodules, particularly in persons between 30 and 50 years of age, may indicate the development of a tumor of the gland. Because of this fact, it is suggested that, when such a nodule is present, an operation should be carried out and the growth removed. Often a number of these nodules or lumps are present in the gland.

In many instances, this condition is due to a lack of iodine. However, in some cases, the nodules may be causing pressure on the nerves or on the windpipe, in which case removal of the thyroid gland may be necessary. If it is suspected that a malignant tumor or cancer of the thyroid is present, removal of the entire thyroid gland must be carried out at once.

In some cases, X-ray treatments following the removal of the gland may be required, depending upon whether or not it has been possible to remove the entire gland at the time of operation. If the growth has progressed so far that operation cannot be carried out at all, X-ray treatments are employed.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

W. G. L.: What are the purposes of X-ray treatments?

Answer: X-ray treatments are used for tumors and infections, as well as in certain skin inflammations. A very rare and occasional use is to produce sterility.

CHAPTER NINETEEN

CATHY had the powder room to herself and was snaking glad for that. It gave her a moment to pull herself together. She sat on a bench before the dressing table and put her face in her shaking hands, savoring the loveliness of those precious moments with Bill. Her heart was singing; Bill loved her, and everything was going to be all right, now, he had said—very soon!

The gentle, liquid voice of the Negro maid said anxiously, "Honey, is yo' sick? Kin I git yo' anything?"

Cathy looked up, radiant. "No, thanks—I'm fine," she answered. Her voice sang and the maid's plump, dark face split with a wide grin. "Yessum, I see yo' is, now!"

Cathy laughed and leaned toward the mirror to smooth her lipstick and to brush her straight nose with a dust of powder. Behind her the powder room door swung open and Edith Kendall marched in.

"Oh, here you are," she said curtly to Cathy, and to the startled, big-eyed maid she said sharply, "Go away. I'll ring for you if I want anything."

The maid, knowing that Mrs. Kendall was perhaps the most influential, since the richest, member of the club, mumbled a scared "Yessum" and slid out of the room. Cathy went on smoothing her powder on her nose, touching her fingers, amazingly, they were not trembling, she was pleased to note. Mrs. Kendall stood looking down at her with angry eyes.

"I might have known," she said thinly. "But I thought you'd behave like a lady in public, anyway."

Cathy snapped shut the lid of her compact, dropped it into the small deflated yellow bag that hung from a ribbon over her arm, and stood up. She faced Mrs. Kendall calmly, with her head bent.

"I'm afraid I haven't the faintest idea what you're talking about," she said coolly. "And I'm even more afraid I don't care."

She started to brush past Mrs. Kendall, but that lady's hand shot out and closed over her arm. To Cathy's startled anger, "I'm talking about you slipping out of doors with Bill the minute he arrives," said Mrs. Kendall furiously. "Knowing that he is engaged to Elaine—"

Cathy stood very still, for a moment forgetful of the woman's hand closed tightly over her arm. "Engaged?" she repeated incredulously. "Bill is engaged to Miss Stevart?"

And then she barely managed to smother a little laugh. Did Mrs. Kendall think she could make her believe that? But of course, Cathy reminded herself, Bill's aunt had no way of knowing that Bill and she were married.

"I'm giving a tea Sunday afternoon to announce their engagement," said Mrs. Kendall sharply.

"It's a most suitable marriage and the two are simply mad about each other. You—you've always been a bad influence for Bill, but you've got to leave him alone, do you hear me? I do not propose to stand by and watch you mess up his life."

"I quite understand that. You much prefer to mess it up yourself," returned Cathy. For a moment Mrs. Kendall was still, blinking a little as though astounded at Cathy's words.

"How dare you—" she began, on an almost strangled note. And then she pulled herself together and said sharply, "Don't fool yourself, my dear. Bill knows on which side his bread is buttered. Bill's been desperately poor; he knows what it means, and he has no intention of risking his financial security by going against my wishes. Bill will do as I wish, because he knows the cost of opposing me."

Cathy studied the other woman curiously. "Mrs. Kendall, you are fond of Bill, aren't you?" she asked quietly.

Mrs. Kendall was obviously puzzled, both at the question and at its quiet tone. "Certainly I am fond of him," she answered. "Bill is like my own son. There's nothing I wouldn't do for him."

"Except let him live his own life, and find his own happiness," said Cathy quietly.

"By which you mean let him marry you!"

"Bill is grown and of legal age—and a bit more," Cathy pointed out. "You have no right to let Bill do anything—or to attempt to stop him. Nor has he any right to permit you to interfere in his life."

"I interfered, as you put it, in Bill's life at a time when he was in desperate straits, just after his mother died."

"I've always wondered why you waited that long to step in," said Cathy frankly. "You were right here in town; you knew that she and Bill were having a pretty grim time of it. I wonder that the luxury and comfort you were enjoying while they starved didn't seem to bother you a bit."

Mrs. Kendall's plump chin went up and her eyes were frosty. "Bill's mother was foolishly proud. She would accept nothing from my husband."

"I'm sorry, I'm afraid I don't believe that."

Mrs. Kendall's face became congested with angry color. "Do you dare call me a liar?" she gasped in outrage.

"I'm afraid I'm not very impressed by your efforts to help Bill and his mother," said Cathy. "And I'm not too impressed by the fact that you are demanding the right to twist his whole life to suit your selfish ends, just because you have shared with him money that should have been his rightfully, with no strings attached to it."

Mrs. Kendall panted. But she fought down her fury so that she could speak at last, her voice low-pitched, thin-edged, shaking a little with her outrage.

"I do not have to answer to you for anything I have ever done or say. You are too unimportant. I am merely warning you that you are making a fool of yourself, and that Bill is going to be guided by my wishes. He will marry Elaine—a most suitable marriage. And if you keep on running after him, you're going to look very silly indeed when that happens."

Cathy said coolly, "When 'that' happens."

"Why, you little upstart!" Edith Kendall flamed—but at that moment the door was thrust open and a chattering group of women came in, looking a little startled at the sight of the two women drawn up against each other, both pale, both with flashing eyes.

Cathy chose the opportunity to escape a scene that was rapidly getting out of hand. She was sick with disgust and shaken with the ugliness of the scene through which she had passed. But even as she closed the door behind her, she heard Mrs. Kendall saying something that sought to smooth over the situation, and the other women politely abetting her.

Cathy's one desire was to escape, to get away from the club. But she remembered Mark and Maggie and knew that they must be wondering about her. She had been unbearably rude to Mark whose guest she was; she must make amends. And so she pulled herself together with an effort and went quickly back into the dining room, whose wide doors opened on to the dance floor. The floor was crowded just now, for the orchestra was playing a sentimental old-fashioned waltz and the older members of the Club were taking zealous advantage of it.

As Cathy threaded her way back to her table, she saw Maggie and Mark dancing. Maggie's color was high and her eyes were bright and Mark was smiling down at her with warm affection. Cathy knew how much this evening meant to Maggie and not for anything in the world would she have done anything to spoil it.

She made her way back to the table and sank gratefully into her chair; grateful for its support because her knees were shaking. Grateful for the fact that Mark and Maggie were dancing, and that she had a badly needed moment to collect herself before they came back.

She saw, when her eyes had cleared a little and she could be aware of what was going on about her, that Bill was dancing with Elaine. Elaine had tucked her head a little against his shoulder, and they were not talking. Bill's eyes were searching for Cathy, and as he found her, someone tapped him on the shoulder and he relinquished Elaine to her new partner and came straight to Cathy.

NORTH AFRICAN FUTURE

NORTH AFRICA could become the granary of Europe, says Thomas D. Campbell in the New York Times. This former brigadier general, said to be the largest individual wheat grower in the world, who has now returned to his Hardin, Mont., home, is entitled to be heard with respect. The soil and climate are not unlike those of our wheat-growing West. Modern methods of cultivation are all that is needed.

North Africa was once essentially a part of Europe. Under the Roman empire the Mediterranean was a mere lake. The coming of Mohammedanism turned it into a boundary between two different and hostile civilizations, causing the African side of the line to lag far behind the European. The French conquest of Algeria and Tunis, and later of Morocco, were steps in the restoration of Africa to the European sphere of life. An even greater change would come from the reclamation of the desert, and the establishment of a fertile grain-producing land.

PIG MADE TO ORDER

MORE HAMS for less corn. The kind of pig that fills this kind of order has just been exhibited proudly by a Minnesota farmer who grew him, at the International Livestock Show in Chicago. The breed has achieved that new look for porkers, so much desired, which is a long, lean silhouette with heavier hind quarters—hams to you. He has produced more meat per pound of the feed per pound than any other kind of hog.

The American foreign aid program calls for increasing food supplies and for cutting down grain consumption. Right then along comes a farmer with a pig who does just that. It does seem as if the American farmer can do anything!

CARELESSNESS

WHEN THIS vigorous young nation of ours plays, it certainly makes a job of it. Too often the end of a holiday is grief. A report of the recent Thanksgiving holiday showed that more than a hundred lives were lost in the merry-making, most of them in traffic accidents.

It is fine for old and young alike to work and play, and we Americans have usually preferred games that demand considerable energy—which is as it should be. But it is dreadful to wake up after the celebration of a jolly festival and face the cold fact that more than a hundred persons have lost their lives by carelessness and over-exertion. The cost is certainly too great.

Though there is no essential connection, the disclosures regarding Maj. Gen. Bennett E. Meyers and his speculations have done no good to the bill providing compulsory military training. Justly or unjustly many, especially ex-GIs, feel that an officer's misdeeds get covered up, while an ordinary soldier gets the book thrown at him.

Doubt Congress Will Act Probers See No Flinching Now on Price Proposals In Aviation Industry, Itself

Special to Central Press

WASHINGTON—It now appears doubtful if the special session will act on any of President Truman's 10 proposals to beat the high cost of living.

Chief reasons for probable delayed action until the regular session which opens Jan. 6 are: 1—General controversy over most of Mr. Truman's proposals, particularly a return to price control and rationing. 2—Debate by GOP-controlled congressional committees to hold full hearings on most of the program points. 3—Revolt of "freedom" senators against the leadership of Senator Robert A. Taft, GOP policy director.

Originally, revival of installment buying controls and export restrictions were considered certain of immediate approval. Even these are now doubtful as opposition to the first named has appeared from bankers, auto dealers and luxury trades and a proposal by Commerce Secretary W. Averell Harriman for an enlarged export control enforcement staff is sure to cause prolonged debate.

The GOP "first-termers" contend the GOP leadership should take an aggressive position on price curbs and that Taft has not done so.

CLEAN WINGS—The Bennett Meyers case has spotlighted the aircraft industry in the biggest war profits scandal uncovered to date because Meyers' financial dealings were in aviation stocks and companies.

Investigating authorities state fully, however, that the industry itself, in building the greatest air force in history, will not be found guilty of anything more serious than honest errors committed amidst the rush of the greatest manufacturing expansion ever known.

George E. Sokolsky's

These Days

On April 24, 1946, subsequent to Poland becoming a puppet of Soviet Russia, the Export-Import bank, an agency of the government of the United States, with the consent of the State department, made a loan to Poland of $40,000,000 and extended further credits to Poland of $50,000,000 to purchase surplus American property held in Europe. These loans, amounting to $90,000,000 were unsecured.

At the time the loan was made, the State department issued the following explanation:

"It has been and will continue to be the policy of the United States government to assist the Polish people in their valiant efforts to overcome the destruction and devastation of the war. . . In the view of this government, however, economic freedom and political freedom are interdependent, and for that reason, this government has made it clear on numerous occasions that the election commitments undertaken by Poland at Yalta and Potsdam must be fulfilled in their entirety. It remains true today, as it was when that pledge was first given, that for the Polish people to achieve their goals of freedom and democracy, they must be given the opportunity freely to elect a government which represents the will of the Polish people."

Poland, in spite of this $90,000,000, did not live up to its "election commitments," instead, Poland has gone through a political terror, has become a police state, utterly and completely dominated by Soviet Russia. Still, they got the credit of $90,000,000.

Now we come to November, 1947. There is no longer any doubt as to the character of the government of Poland. There is no longer any doubt that Poland's coal during 1946-1947 was shipped into Soviet Russia, even depriving the Poles. Nevertheless, the United States shipped locomotives to Poland—made of American steel at a time when we suffer from a steel shortage and Secretary of Commerce Averell Harriman proposes rationing steel for American consumption.

The Polish credit is to be used as follows, according to the Export-Import bank:

Steam locomotives, including spare parts, $15,000,000; machine tools and similar equipment for railway repair shops and track maintenance, $15,000,000; coal mining equipment, $5,000,000; railway communications equipment, $4,000,000.

Acting Secretary of State Lovett makes this point that the credit of $40,000,000 to Poland was for the purpose of helping that country to purchase coal cars and locomotives in the United States in order to facilitate the transportation of coal from Poland to Western Europe and the Balkans.

A further excuse seems to be that the steam locomotive manufacturers need a subsidy and this is one way to give it to them. In other words, what seems to be an adolescent industry is to be kept alive by shipping our irreplaceable steel abroad.

This is the argument: "We (the Export-Import bank) were informed by locomotive manufacturers in the United States that, although their plants could produce approximately 1,800 steam locomotives per year, they had orders from U. S. railroads for only 80 steam locomotives. It is our understanding that this situation has not materially changed and that, although the locomotive manufacturers have a considerable backlog of orders from U. S. railroads for diesel locomotives, they are desperately in need of orders to keep the plants in which they produce steam locomotives in operation."

When the Thyroid Gland Becomes Enlarged

By HERMAN N. SUNDESEN, M.D.

THE thyroid gland may become enlarged from a good many different causes but, whatever the cause, such an enlargement is known to the doctor as goiter of one type or another. Fortunately, the most common sort is not serious in its effects if proper treatment is given at the start. This type of goiter occurs in growing girls and pregnant women, probably because at these periods there is a demand for an increased amount of the thyroid gland secretion.

The chief ingredient of the thyroid gland secretion is iodine; thus, in treating this enlargement, it is suggested that the patient take iodine in some form prescribed by the physician. Even more important, perhaps, would be the regular use of iodized salt to help prevent goiters of this type.

Simple Enlargement
Sometimes patients with these simple enlargements of the thyroid gland show symptoms of hypothyroidism or lack of thyroid secretion. These symptoms may include gain in weight, thinning of the hair, dryness of the skin, fatigue, and constipation. If these symptoms develop, it may be necessary for the patient to take thyroid extract in doses which the physician prescribes.

The test known as the basal metabolism test is helpful in determining whether or not hypothyroidism is present. This test is carried out by having the patient breathe oxygen from a tank and measuring the amount of oxygen used up in a given period of time.

In hypothyroidism, oxygen is used at a slower rate than normally.

When Lump Forms

Sometimes a lump forms in the thyroid gland. Such lumps or nodules, particularly in persons between 30 and 40 years of age, may indicate the development of a tumor of the gland. Because of this fact, it is suggested that, when such a nodule is present, an operation should be carried out and the growth removed. Often a number of these nodules or lumps are present in the gland.

In many instances, this condition is due to a lack of iodine. However, in some cases, the nodules may be causing pressure on the nerves or on the windpipe, in which case removal of the thyroid gland may be necessary. If it is suspected that a malignant tumor or cancer of the thyroid is present, removal of the entire thyroid gland must be carried out at once.

In some cases, X-ray treatments following the removal of the gland may be required, depending upon whether or not it has been possible to remove the entire gland at the time of operation. If the growth has progressed so far that operation cannot be carried out at all, X-ray treatments are employed.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

W. G. L.: What are the purposes of X-ray treatments?

Answer: X-ray treatments are used for tumors and infections, as well as in certain skin inflammations. A very rare and occasional use is to produce sterility.

CHAPTER NINETEEN

CATHY had the powder room to herself and was shakily glad for that. It gave her a moment to pull herself together. She sat on a bench before the dressing table and put her face in her shaking hands, savoring the loveliness of those precious moments with Bill. Her heart was singing; Bill loved her, and everything was going to be all right, now, he had said—very soon!

The gentle, liquid voice of the Negro maid said anxiously, "Honey, is yo' sick? Kin I git yo' anything?"

Cathy looked up, radiant. "No, thanks—I'm fine," she answered. Her voice sang and the maid's plump, dark face split with a wide grin. "Yessum, I see yo' is now."

Cathy laughed and leaned toward the mirror to smooth her lipstick and to brush her straight nose with a dust of powder. Behind her the powder room door swung open and Edith Kendall marched in.

"Oh, here you are," she said curiously to Cathy, and to the startled, big-eyed maid she said sharply, "Go away. I'll ring for you if I want anything."

The maid, knowing that Mrs. Kendall was perhaps the most influential, since the richest, member of the club, mumbled a scared "Yessum" and slid out of the room.

Cathy went on smoothing powder on her nose, touching her fingers, amazingly, they were not trembling, she was pleased to note Mrs. Kendall stood looking down at her with angry eyes.

"I might have known," she said thinly. "But I thought you'd behave like a lady in public, anyway."

Cathy snapped shut the lid of her compact, dropped it into the small deflated yellow bag that hung from a ribbon over her arm, and stood up. She faced Mrs. Kendall calmly, with her head back.

"I'm afraid I haven't the faintest idea what you're talking about," she said coolly. "And I'm even more afraid I don't care." She started to brush past Mrs. Kendall, but that lady's hand shot out and closed over her arm, to Cathy's startled anger.

"I'm talking about you slipping out of doors with Bill the minute he arrives," said Mrs. Kendall furiously. "Knowing that he is engaged to Elaine—"

Cathy stood very still, for a moment, forgetting of the woman's hand closed tightly over her arm.

"Engaged?" she repeated incredulously. "Bill is engaged to Miss Stevart!"

And then she barely managed to smother a little laugh. Did Mrs. Kendall think she could make her believe that? But of course, Cathy reminded herself, Bill's aunt had no way of knowing that Bill and she were married.

"I'm giving a tea Sunday afternoon to announce their engagement," said Mrs. Kendall sharply.

"It's a most suitable marriage and the two are simply mad about each other. You—you've always been a bad influence for Bill, but you've got to leave him alone, do you hear me? I do not propose to stand by and watch you mess up his life."

Miss Marie L. Hamilton Officiates At OES Golden Anniversary

Mrs. Goodchild
Is Worthy Matron

Fiftieth annual installation ceremonies of Order of Eastern Star took place Tuesday evening in the chapter rooms of Masonic temple with more than 200 members and their guests in attendance.

Miss Marie L. Hamilton, past grand matron, served as installing officer at the impressive rites. Mrs. Frank Reichelderfer, outgoing worthy matron, and Arthur Sark, outgoing worthy patron were in the chairs. After a business session the chapter recessed and the 1947 officers retired.

Mrs. Robert Goodchild was installed worthy matron and Oscar Ward as worthy patron for 1948. The floral addendum was a presentation of the 23rd Psalm. Mrs. Kenneth Robbins sang, "The Lord Is My Shepherd" and "Three Fold Amen."

Officers installed in their respective stations were: Mrs. Joseph Brink, associate matron; Joseph Brink, associate patron; Mrs. G. H. Atkins, secretary; Mrs. E. S. Shane, treasurer; Mrs. Homer Reber, conductress; Mrs. Don Collins, associate conductress; Mrs. Oscar Ward, chaplain; Mrs. Aaron Lumpe, marshal; Miss Reba Lee, organist; Mrs. John Woods, Adah; Mrs. Guy Cline, Ruth; Mrs. Dorothy Gerhardt, Esther; Mrs. Fred J. Colville, Martha; Mrs. Dick Robinson, Electa; Mrs. Dick Bremer, Warder; and Guy Cline, sentinel.

Miss Hamilton was assisted by Mrs. Lawrence L. Johnson, past deputy grand marshal; Mrs. Frank Bowling, grand marshal; Mrs. Elizabeth Bennett, deputy grand marshal; district 23; Mrs. Joseph Peters, grand installing organist; Mrs. R. P. Summers, grand installing warder; Sam Morris, grand installing sentinel; Mrs. Cecil Noecker and Mrs. George K. Fishpaw, floral marshals, and Mrs. Kenneth Robinson, soloist.

Officers were gowned in white with accessories of gold. After the chapter was closed, refreshments were served in the Red Room. Mrs. Fishpaw and Mrs. Reichelderfer presided at the table decorated in gold and white appointments.

Small gold wagons were attached to a large gold star in the center of the table. Gold stars were sprinkled about the white cloth and white tapers in gold holders formed the number 50, carrying out the golden anniversary theme.

Committee members responsible for the evening were Mrs. W. B. Cady, chairman, Mrs. Ray P. Reid, Miss Virginia Marion, Mrs. Carl Johnson, Mrs. Fred Moeller, Miss Anne Moeller, Mrs. Eric W. Peters, Mrs. R. P. Summers, Mrs. George Young and Mrs. Collis A. Young, Mrs. Lyman Bell and Mrs. A. J. Lyle were in charge of the decorations. George K. Fishpaw, George Welker and Homer Reber served on the chair committee.

Announcement was made of the Christmas meeting, December 23. Mrs. N. E. Reichelderfer was named chairman. Assisting her will be Mrs. Charles Smith, Mrs. Ralph Ward, Mrs. Roy Beatty, Mrs. Charles Gusman, Mrs. Robert Denman, Mrs. Kathryn Thomerson and Mrs. Lester George.

WS Of WS Has Yule Time Gathering

Members of the Ladies Aid of Women's Society of World Service of Calvary Evangelical United Brethren church had a covered-dish supper Tuesday evening in the social room of the church.

For the occasion, the dining-room was decorated with a Christmas tree, cedar, pine cones and lighted tapers. Miniature candle favors marked each place at the table.

Special Christmas recordings were played, carols sung and appropriate readings submitted by various members of the aid. Miss Goldy Noggle and Mrs. Manley Carothers conducted the devotionals.

Mrs. Lawrence Warner read a letter of appreciation from a family in Germany which had received food and clothing from Calvary church members. Mrs. Edward Bost directed the contests during the social hours.

Baby foods make simple, tasty sandwich spreads. Combine a can of strained apple sauce with two tablespoons of peanut butter and a dash of salt to taste, or, using cream cheese and butter as a blended base, add strained carrots and chopped apples. You may use many different varieties from the strained vegetables and fruits.

Class Slates Christmas Party

Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Martindale, route 3, were hosts Tuesday evening to 30 members and guests of the Good Samaritan class of Church of Nazareth. Mrs. Hattie White, president, was in charge of the devotionals and business session.

Mrs. Loring Allen gave the history of "It Came Upon The Midnight Clear" following the singing of carols by the group. Selected readings were offered by Mrs. Baldwin Anderson, Mrs. William Lake and Mrs. Raymond Tomlinson.

The class voted to entertain three primary classes of the church at a Christmas party. A gift exchange was held and the group presented the Rev. Roy Wolford and Mrs. Wolford with a Christmas gift. Hosts served refreshments assisted by Mr. and Mrs. Baldwin Anderson, Mrs. Loring Allen and Mrs. Tomlinson.

Mrs. Glen Pillsbury, Los Angeles, arrived Tuesday in Cincinnati where she will be the guest of her aunt, Miss Clara Southward, West Franklin street.

Holiday Spirit Will Be Shared With Children

Mrs. Chester Starkey, South Court street, was hostess Tuesday evening to members of Loyal Daughters class of First Evangelical United Brethren church for their pre-Christmas meeting. The holiday spirit predominated in the home where a lighted Christmas tree and festive decorations were used in keeping with the season.

Mrs. Carl L. Wilson was in charge of the evening program. Carols were sung and Mrs. Clara Zwicker read the "Christmas Story." Appropriate selections were read by Miss Gladys Noggle, Mrs. Russell Jones, Mrs. Paul Gentzel and Mrs. Wilson. Mrs. Charles Ater and Mrs. Frank Hawkes sang a duet. Prayers were offered by Mrs. Elliott Mason, Mrs. Walter Mavis, Mrs. Wilson, Mrs. Zwicker, Miss Noggle, Mrs. Jones and Miss Ina Klingensmith.

Mrs. Hawkes, president, read letters of appreciation for gifts received by Delores and Phyllis Hawkes. "Santa" distributed toys, which will be distributed to a group of children at Christmas. Contest awards were presented Mrs. James Cook and Mrs. Walter Mavis. Entertainment was directed by Mrs. Wilson, Mrs. Jones, Mrs. Gentzel, Mrs. Zwicker and Mrs. Ella Voelker.

Refreshments were served 35 members by Mrs. Kenneth May, Mrs. Charles Ater, Mrs. George Ankrom, Mrs. Stanley Goodman and Mrs. Starkey.

Gifts

Members of the Pickaway Garden club are asked to bring a 25-cent Christmas gift for a club exchange when they meet Friday evening in the home of Mrs. T. O. Gilliland, Pinckney street.

B And PW

Members of Business and Professional Women's club are requested to meet at the Circle Press, South Court street, Thursday at 7 p. m. to go in a body to their anniversary dinner party in Mrs. Stanley Glick's home.

To make the smell of cooking fish sweet and pleasant, scorch a little brown sugar or vinegar in a frying pan. The sugar gives off the aroma of caramel.

Hints On Unusual Christmas Favors

Comes the time of year when artistic ingenuity comes into its own and clever, handy folk demonstrate that it doesn't take a mint to do a table beautifully. For it is the ingenious little touches that spell home and make it a real Christmas and not a great big splurge.

For place cards how about some date penguins? Take a pitted date and open it wide. Cut a portion from a marshmallow and insert so that it is plainly visible. Use two small round gumdrops for feet and a raisin for head. Attach to date body with toothpicks. Nice for little favors, too.

Christmas elves are another good idea. Use a pulled fig for the body. Insert a wire through top and bottom. Cover the wire with pitted dates for the arms and legs, raisins for the hands and feet. Attach a marshmallow head by means of a toothpick neck. Blonde elves have the top of their heads dipped in light corn syrup and then in toasted coconut. Kids will love making these if they don't eat the fixings first!

Use bright yellow oranges for centerpiece novelties. Mr. and Mrs. S. Claus are fun to make and nice to look at, a most entertaining couple!

For each figure, stick two oranges together using sharp cocktail-type picks. Cut thin slice from bottom orange to make it stand level. Paste cotton on top orange to simulate hair, and for eyebrows and Santa's whiskers. Stick raisins on with pins for eyes, nose and mouth. Make crepe paper bonnet for one figure, and a hat for the other one.

Popcorn balls can be just that, or they can go fancy, with nutmeats inside, then wrapped in colored transparent paper or cellophane and tied with ribbon. Nice on the tree, nice piled on the table to add an extra touch to the centerpiece or other decorative touches.

Dissolve 2 c. sugar and 1/2 c. dark corn syrup in 1 1/4 c. hot water; cook slowly, without stirring, to 260 F. (firm ball stage). Add tsp. vanilla, tsp. vinegar and 1-3 tsp. salt. Cook to 264 F. (or until a solid but not brittle ball is formed in cold water). While syrup is cooking, crisp 5 qt. seasoned popped corn in the oven. When syrup is cooked, remove popped corn from the oven (it should be piping hot) and sprinkle 1 1/2 c. pecan nutmeats on top. Pour syrup lightly over popcorn and nut mixture, turning lightly with a wooden spoon. Rub cooking oil lightly on hands and press balls together with a light cupping of the palms to shape.

If you save the tough, woody ends of asparagus, cooking them until soft, then pressing through a sieve, you can add the pulp to a mixed vegetable or cream soup.

Circleville Suffers First Defeat In Grove City Tilt

40-34 Tally Is Handed Local '5'

Patzer Too Hot To Handle

Circleville's cagers were defeated 40-34 by the Greyhounds of Grove City Tuesday night in a tension-packed game which was nip and tuck all the way.

Carl Patzer, acting captain of the Greyhounds was just too hot to handle. He scored 23 points against the Circleville boys.

The Tigers put on a good offensive, but their defense, which had been one of their best features in their winning opener against Chillicothe, was ragged. The Greyhounds found it easy to penetrate the CHS defense and to score.

The score was tied twice in the tilt. In the third period, with a score of 19 to 18, Cook made a free shot and "Skeets" Smallwood tallied to tie it up at 19 all. Eppard put Circleville ahead, 20-19, with a charity toss. The Tigers dominated the rest of the period, staying on the top at the end of the period, 29 to 25.

THIS SHOW of offense must have aroused Patzer, however, for he came forward in the first of the fourth period to sink three in quick succession, putting the Grove City team ahead 31-29. Jack Young scored a free shot and a bucket to put CHS back in the lead, 32-31. Jerry Lambert came back for Grove City with a basket, making the score 33-32.

Don Cook hooked a left-hander to give Circleville 34, but that was as far as the local lads could go. A basket by Lambert and two by Patzer completed the win for the Greyhounds, 40 to 34.

Circleville's reserves won their tilt, 28-21, with "Sandy" Hill garnering nine points to place him high man on his team. Rowley was high scorer for the Grove City reserves with 10.

Circleville's third game of the season will be against Columbus University high school on the Roll-N-Bowl court next Tuesday.

Brownies Prep For Yank Tilt

CLEVELAND, Dec. 10—Cleveland's Champion Browns went through heavy workouts today before they prepare to leave for New York where they will tangle with the New York Yankees Sunday in a battle for the All-American football conference title.

The Yankees, according to latest reports, plan to bottle up Quarterback Otto Graham in the play-off contest in an effort to halt the Clevelanders' aerial game.

In the teams' recent contest, which resulted in 28-28 tie, the Yanks, with two men on Mac Speedie and Dante Lavelli, temporarily stopped the Browns' gains through the air, but Graham, who had three passes intercepted in the tilt, began to toss his strikes to Mickey Mayne, right halfback.

Mayne, who was installed at the halfback position three weeks prior to the game, snagged a Graham pass and almost broke away for a touchdown in the third canto. It was a Graham-to-Mayne pass good for 30 yards that started the Browns toward their six-pointer late in the same period.

SOME FINGER POINTING

Big 9 Solons Deny Poaching Is Custom

CHICAGO, Dec. 10—Western conference spokesmen pooh-pooh the thought that the alleged recruiting of athletic talent by member schools will be a major topic of discussion when the conference winter meetings get under way here tomorrow.

There will be a lot of finger pointing, perhaps, and possibly some "you-did-it-didn't" dialogue, but even Purdue, which has lately been assailed for possessing "too good" a freshman football team, isn't worried.

A recent release from the Purdue athletic office disclosed the Boilermaker freshman football squad includes 15 players from Illinois and 11 from Ohio.

Illinois, of course, "belongs" to the University of Illinois and Northwestern university, and Ohio "belongs" to Ohio State. So here, all of a sudden, are 26 football players from one state or the other showing up at Purdue, which, when last heard from, was in Indiana.

UNDERSTAND now, that does not mean Purdue went out and lured helpless youths from neighboring states; even if someone had suggested to the lads that Purdue is a good school with a good football team, that wouldn't necessarily constitute recruiting.

What it would be, in well-defined Big Nine parlance, is a violation of tribal rights; a process of poaching on the other guy's preserves whereby everybody hunts in somebody else's yard and the ratio of out-of-state performers remains fairly constant for all nine conference teams.

Ray Eliot, the Illinois coach who is reported to be miffed at Purdue, has had a transfer student all the way from Tulsa playing for him these past two seasons. His name is Perry Moss.

Conversely, a kid who grew up in the shadow of Illinois' stately halls decided he wanted to go to Illinois and thought some day, before he enrolled, he'd hop over to the university and give the place a look-see. When he finally got there, it was in a Michigan football uniform, and—his name's Bump Elliott—he proceeded to lead Michigan to triumph over the Illini.

Burton Tipped As Contender

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 10—Gene Burton, New York boxer, was regarded today as the logical challenger to meet Welterweight Champion Ray "Sugar" Dusenbury in a fight scheduled for New Orleans.

Burton was the second man to whip Dusenbury in 44 fights.

The bout was so close the referee gave the decision to Burton by two points; one judge scored one point in the Negro's favor and the second judge tabbed the New York lad with a three-point edge.

A sellout crowd of 10,000 at Olympic auditorium watched Burton keep the lead in points over Dusenbury throughout the battle.

Sanders Injury Eyed By Pros

NEW YORK, Dec. 10—Spec Sanders, league leading offensive star, remained a doubtful quantity today for purposes of the impending All America conference championship playoff between the New York Yankees and Cleveland Browns.

The game Sunday is expected to draw nearly 80,000 people to Yankee Stadium.

Sanders, who last Sunday established conference records with 1,432 yards on running plays and total of 2,874 yards overall, sprained his left ankle in the Brooklyn game and has been ordered off the practice field for 48 hours.

Instead, Strauss stated that he expected "interesting developments" from the Joey Maxim-Olle Tandberg fight, Jan. 9, for which contracts were signed yesterday.

Maxim scored a 10-round decision over Walcott in August, 1946. Tandberg, Swedish champion, broke up a proposed Joe Louis title fight earlier this year by winning from Joe Baksi, the scheduled challenger, in Stockholm.

Denison Coach To Be Heard Here Thursday

Local football enthusiasts will have a chance Thursday night to listen to a coach who has produced a grid team good enough to come through a full season untied and undefeated.

The coach is Woody Hays, head mentor at Denison university, whose Big Red gridiron aggregation has just won the mythical championship of Ohio colleges, despite objections from Miami university at Oxford.

Hays will be the principal speaker at the annual Circleville

Booster club banquet in Memorial hall.

Highlight of the program will be the presentation of the "most valuable player" award to some member of the 1947 Circleville high school football team.

THE TROPHY is one of the top prizes presented to a member of the local school, and gives the boys something to shoot at every year.

The program will start at 6:15 p. m. and the public is invited. Those who do not particularly care too much for football still will be pleased with the turkey dinner which precedes the ceremony. Tickets are on sale at Betz's restaurant, and at the Kroger super market on West Main street. Admission price is $2 per person.

It's a completely new line—in colors or white...an entirely new kind of "Dutch Boy" House Paint...blended just right to stay beauty-bright. Blended by the master hand of the "Dutch Boy," with all his years of experience in keeping America's homes young and lovely.

3 Blends for 3-Way Beauty
House paint is required to do three different jobs. And blending gives three different types of paint, each designed to do its job right. 1—Dazzling White, blended to stay white. 2—Sparkling Tint, blended to stay fresh and true. 3—Gay Trim Colors, blended to stay glossy and bright.

So remember, your home's best friend is the "Dutch Boy" blend. Talk to us about your paint requirements.

Notice and resolution in the matter of designating public depositories and awarding the public moneys of the Board of Education of the Circleville City School District of Pickaway County, Ohio.

Notice is hereby given by the Board of Education of the Circleville City School District, Pickaway County, Ohio, that applications for the awards of inactive public moneys of said Board totaling $350,000, same being part of the proceeds of an authorized bond issue will be received at the office of the Clerk of said Board in the Circleville High School Building until 12:00 o'clock noon, Eastern Standard Time, Monday, December 22, 1947, and that a meeting of the said Board will be held at 7:30 p. m. Eastern Standard Time on December 29, 1947 for the purpose of designating the public depositories of the inactive moneys of said Board and awarding said inactive public moneys to and among the depositories so designated for the 6 months period beginning January 1, 1948 and ending June 30, 1948 as provided by the "Uniform Depository Act" (Section 2296.1 et. seq. of the General Code of Ohio) pursuant to the following resolution adopted by the Board of Education of the Circleville City School District on December 2, 1947 to wit:

RESOLUTION
In the matter of designating public depositories and awarding the inactive public moneys of the Board of Education of the Circleville City School District, Pickaway County, Ohio.

Whereas, the Circleville City School District recently voted $357,000 of School Improvement Bonds, issued by a vote of the people;

Whereas, the amount received from the sale of said bonds, including principal, premium and accrued interest, amounted to $350,513.51;

Whereas, at the time said money was received for said bonds there was not sufficient time before the intended payment thereof to advertise for depositories for said funds;

Whereas, in view of the present prevailing high prices, shortage of material, and the need for much preliminary work, some period of time will elapse before said money or any appreciable portion thereof, will be actually spent for said intended improvement;

Whereas, a portion of said money ought therefore to be declared inactive pending its actual expenditure;

Whereas, prior hereto said school district has had no inactive fund nor any established depository therefore;

Whereas, said funds are now deposited temporarily in the First National Bank of Circleville, Ohio with sufficient and proper collateral pledged as security therefor; now therefore

Be it resolved by the Board of Education of the Circleville City School District:

Section I. That for a period of 6 months, beginning January 1, 1948, $350,000 of said moneys be and the same is hereby declared inactive and subject to award to public depositories by this Board for the period beginning January 1, 1948 and ending June 30, 1948.

Section II. That the Board shall designate public depositories as defined in the "Uniform Depository Act" for the deposit of such inactive funds, or any portion thereof, to be made by the Clerk of this Board at the office of the Board, until 12:00 o'clock noon, Eastern Standard Time, Monday, December 29, 1947, and that said applications shall be published open by said Clerk.

Section III. That public depositories shall be designated and awards of said inactive funds shall be made at a special meeting of the Board at 7:30 p. m. on Monday, the 29th day of December, 1947, its office in the Circleville High School Building.

Section IV. That a copy of this resolution, together with a notice of the date on which the meeting of this Board for the designation of such depositories will be held, and the period for which deposits will be awarded, be published once a week for two consecutive weeks in two newspapers of opposite politics and of general circulation in Pickaway County, Ohio, and the Clerk of this Board be and they are hereby authorized and directed to execute and publish the same as necessary in connection with the deposit of such funds.

Adopted by the Board of Education of the Circleville City School District, Pickaway County, Ohio, December 2, 1947. C. R. Barnhart, President. J. O. Eagleson, Clerk.

Right is reserved by said Board to reject any or all bids.
By order of the Board of Education of the Circleville City School District, Pickaway County, Ohio.

CHICKENS HOME TO ROOST

Solons Crying Loudly About 'Front' Probes

By KENNETH L. DIXON
WASHINGTON, Dec. 10—
Sooner or later, this sort of thing was bound to happen, and the boys would have realized it.

Most of them didn't, however, and as a result there's a great deal of consternation on Capitol Hill these days.

It all concerns the current federal loyalty investigations and the Justice department's blacklisting of countless organizations which it tags variously as Communist, Fascist or other type of "front" outfits.

Highly enthusiastic about such activities when only federal employees and some private citizens were on the spot, a good many senators and representatives suddenly are bucking like first-saddled colts as the chickens come home to roost.

FIRST HINT of the furore which eventually was bound to erupt came some time ago when it was learned that members of congress were being investigated, right along with certain other employees and citizens, and that the results of those investigations were on file.

Solon after solon arose to scream, until someone passed the word to them that it was slightly in bad taste—since they had urged the investigation of millions of others. Grudgingly, they ceased their outbursts, but it is no secret about town that some of them have made life extremely unpleasant for "those blasted bureaucrats" who had the effrontery to investigate them!

In some circles, that might have seemed a thought-provoking lesson on the subject.

Apparently it wasn't, for Capitol Hill continued to resound with cries for the Justice department to publish not only the names of the various subversive organizations it had on file but also to make public the names of all the people who had joined them, at one time or another.

The other day, the department complied with the first half of the request, issuing a master list of some 90-odd outfits which it termed subversive in that they fronted for some "ism" or other.

FOR OBVIOUS practical reasons, as well as some which perhaps are a bit more subtle, Attorney General Tom Clark did not, however, turn loose the names of all those citizens on the membership lists. Among other things, he said calmly that it was quite possible for many innocent people to have been dupped into joining the groups. That, of course, is perfectly possible—although this writer is happy to state that he was fortunate enough not to have joined

Germans Don't Realize Power Of Democracy's Biggest Tool

NEW YORK, Dec. 10—The American listening audience, weaned on the democratic right of free speech, expects the speakers on a forum to come to verbal tiff, disagree mightily, use as much vituperative language as radio will permit.

And if the listener is within commuter's range of the broadcast studio, there is a general scramble for tickets.

A couple of weeks ago in Berlin, a man hesitantly approved an American and asked: Is it really true that I may attend this broadcast?

The broadcast was the Town Hall Radio Forum, "America's town meeting of the air." Two of the speakers appeared before a German audience in Berlin; two before an American audience in New York. It was an international project of some memorable note.

This was the first verbal exchange between the German and American public since hostilities ended.

THE BROADCAST was made late in November and after much harried work to get it on the air, the elements snafued. Some of the debate from Berlin was scarcely audible.

Bad reception was the crowning touch. There was red tape to be slashed before the government permitted Town Hall to undertake the project. There were mechanical difficulties in assembly the necessary equipment.

Mostly, said Gregor Ziemer just returned from Berlin where he produced the European end of the broadcast, there was the problem of re-educating the Germans.

He said "they wouldn't believe they could attend the broadcast. They kept asking us over and over 'is it really true?'"

It was even more difficult, the American broadcasters discovered, to convince the Germans they could ask questions—any questions they wanted.

"The Germans insisted that we see the wording of their questions," Ziemer recalled, "so they would not run the risk of getting themselves into trouble."

"I do know of a number of Germans who refused to ask questions saying 'the Russians will listen. You will mention my name. Some day, perhaps soon, you Americans will leave. Then I go to Buchenwald concentration camp. I think I better not appear on this program.'"

The Germans were fearful, Ziemer said. They did not know how to use the democratic tool of free speech.

any of the organizations.

But (surprise!) a good many senators and representatives were not that fortunate.

The lists weren't made public, but a few enterprising newsmen checked with the headquarters of the outfits and discovered many a solon signed as sponsor of this or that blacklisted organization.

Some of their names already have been published. Others will be in the near future, and the screaming on Capitol Hill today is fast approaching a state of semi-hysteria.

That is the lesson the boys on Capitol Hill have had to learn the hard way. But since they have learned it, it is doubtful if there will be quite so much of their fellow citizens in the future.

AAA Chairman Urges More Fat Salvage

The need for salvaging used kitchen fats continues urgent because of the world wide shortage of fats and oils, John G. Boggs, chairman of the Pickaway County AAA Committee declares.

Boggs reports that most dealers are paying housewives higher prices for used fats turned in.

Grain-saving methods have encouraged farmers to sell cattle and hogs at lighter weights. This practice has meant smaller amounts of inedible fats in the markets.

Salvaging of used fats in the kitchen will help make up for this shortage, Boggs said.

He declared that the Department of Agriculture will continue its active support of the fat salvage program "as long as the present critical situation continues."

FAT SALVAGE is a cooperative job, Boggs said, conducted by industry through the American Fat Salvage Committee with the support of the Department of Agriculture.

Farmers are urged to render out all possible fats in connection with farm butchering. Waste fats which can not be used at home, should be sold at the local retail store.

Sonny Dunham Is Booked Here

Sonny Dunham and his orchestra has been booked for a one night stand at the Roll-n-Bowl here Dec. 18.

The only bandleader who plays both trumpet and trombone, Dunham is a popular attraction to other men of music who have a chance to catch his band. The best of them admit that when it comes to talent Sonny's far in front of the field. His experience rivals that of most other name leader.

Handsome features are said to be 50 percent of a bandleader and Sonny Dunham is said more than his quota. Voted as the best-looking maestro by a group of New York models this year, he is one of the better-looking ornaments on the bandstand.

MINOR SUIT GAMES HARD
TAKING eleven tricks is a lot more difficult proposition, as a general rule, even at your best suit, than scoring nine at No Trumps if you have some sort of stopper in every suit. That is why so many good players strain to reach No Trump games, when they have great minor suit length and strength. Sometimes the best of them will try it without a stopper in some particular suit, if they can infer from their partner's bidding that he is likely to have a stopper in it, or even cards which combined with his own will produce a stopper.

There were many other variations of bidding on this deal, in a tournament. One South got into 5-Clubs and went down two for bottom score. There the spade tops were scored, the heart 9 put East in with the A and a spade return caused South to ruff with an honor, which thereby set up West's 10 for a trick. The 5-Diamonds declarer went down one, losing three tricks in the majors. Everybody who got into 3-No Trumps made it, plus at least one extra trick. The highest North-South score was where West decided to lead the heart 9. East played the 10 to keep his A ready to kill the dummy's Q, so South won with the K. Six tricks each in the two minors then gave him a total of thirteen tricks. The defense of course could have taken three major tricks with top cards, if he had started that way.

South's No Trump bid, a shooter which won him the top, was based on the fact that clubs and diamonds probably could be run and the majors were probably stopped. He himself had hearts safe if they were opened, and he inferred from North's bidding that some sort of spade honor was probably in his hand, as proved to be the case. Had he played himself, he needed to find only a secondary honor there to protect against the suit.

John Brown, co-starred with Louise Erickson on the popular NBC family comedy series "A Date With Judy," announced completion of a swimming pool at his Beverly Hills home this week.

People around New York keep telephoning Bob Hawk and asking about the Scotch "lady stooge" who appeared on his NBC comedy quiz recently. For the sake of the record, Hawk has never had a "stooge," and if some of the contestants, drawn from the studio audience just prior to air time, sound like skillful comics, that's all. The Scotch lady in this case was Miss Arabella McLay, a middle-aged radio fan, who has resided in this country 30 years. She's a matron in an automaton takes care of children while their parents are eating—and has never been closer to professional entertaining than you have been to Stalin!

Meredith Willson's special Christmas Seal program is being released nationally soon through transcription on hundreds of local stations. Featured are his orchestra, the "Talking People" pianist Paulena Carter and Josef Marais and Miranda, South African folk singers.

Notice and resolution in the matter of designating public depositories and awarding the public moneys of the Board of Education of the Circleville City School District of Pickaway County, Ohio.

Notice is hereby given by the Board of Education of the Circleville City School District, Pickaway County, Ohio, that applications and the awarding of inactive public moneys of said Board totaling $350,000, same being part of the proceeds of an authorized bond issue will be received at the office of the Clerk of said Board in the Circleville High School Building until 12:00 o'clock noon, Eastern Standard Time, Monday, December 29, 1947, and that a meeting of the said Board will be held at 7:30 p. m. Eastern Standard Time on December 29, 1947 for the purpose of designating the public depositories of the inactive moneys of said Board and awarding said inactive public moneys to and among the depositories so designated for the 6 months period beginning January 1, 1948 and ending June 30, 1948 as provided by the "Uniform Depository Act" (Section 2296-1 et seq. of the General Code of Ohio) pursuant to the following resolution adopted by the Board of Education of the Circleville City School District on December 2, 1947 to wit:

RESOLUTION
In the matter of designating public depositories and awarding the inactive public moneys of the Board of Education of the Circleville City School District, Circleville, Ohio.
Whereas, the Circleville City School District recently voted $357,000 of School Improvement Bonds, issued by a vote of the people;
Whereas, the amount received from the sale of said bonds, including principal, premium and accrued interest, amounted to $396,904.51;
Whereas, at the time said money was received for said bonds there was not sufficient time after notice of the intended payment thereof to advertise for depositories for said funds;

Whereas, in view of presently prevailing high prices, shortages of material, and the need for such public moneys work, some portion of time will elapse before said money or any appreciable portion thereof can be actually spent for said intended improvement;
Whereas, a portion of said money ought therefore to be declared inactive pending its actual expenditure;

Whereas, prior hereto said school district has had no inactive fund nor any established depository therefore;
Whereas, said funds are now deposited temporarily in the First National Bank of Circleville, Ohio, with sufficient and proper collateral pledged as security therefor; now therefore
Be it resolved by the Board of Education of the Circleville City School District:

Section I. That for a period of 6 months beginning January 1, 1948, $350,000 of said moneys be and the same is hereby declared inactive and subject to the public depositories by this Board for the period beginning January 1, 1948 and ending June 30, 1948.

Section II. That applications from eligible public depositories as defined in the "Uniform Depository Act" for the deposit of such inactive funds, or any part thereof, shall be published and furnished by the Clerk of this Board and shall be received at the office of the Board in the Circleville High School Building, until 12:00 o'clock noon, Eastern Standard Time, Monday, December 29, 1947, and that applications shall be publicly opened by said Clerk at a special meeting of the Board at 7:30 p. m. on Monday, the 29th day of December, 1947, at its office in the Circleville High School Building.

Section III. That a copy of this resolution, together with a notice of the date on which the meeting of this Board for the designation of such depositories will be held, and the period for which deposits will be accepted, be published once a week for two consecutive weeks in two newspapers of opposite politics and one newspaper of each party in Pickaway County, Ohio, and the Clerk of this Board is hereby authorized and directed to execute any contracts or bonds necessary in connection with the deposit of such funds.

Section IV. That the President and Clerk of this Board be and they are hereby authorized and directed to execute any contracts or bonds necessary in connection with the deposit of such funds.

Adopted by the Board of Education of Circleville City School District, Pickaway County, Ohio, December 2, 1947.
J. O. Eagleton, Clerk

Right is reserved by said Board to reject any or all bids.

By order of the Board of Education of the Circleville City School District, Pickaway County, Ohio.

TB Seal Sale Nets $1,735 In First Two Weeks Of Drive

Collection Half Way To Goal

$3,500 Needed
By Association

First two weeks of the 41st annual sale of Christmas seals in Circleville and Pickaway county netted $1,735.60, it was disclosed Wednesday by Mrs. C. E. Webb, executive secretary of the Pickaway County Tuberculosis and Health Association.

The sale began Nov. 24, with the mailing of the Christmas seals, and it will continue through Christmas.

Conducted each year during December, the sale is the only appeal made by the organization to raise funds with which to finance its tuberculosis prevention and control program.

The $1,735.60 raised during the first two weeks, Mrs. Webb said, represents about 50 percent of the campaign goal of $3,500. The quota is based on estimated operating expenses for 1948.

"ALTHOUGH the sale will continue until Christmas," Mrs. Webb asserted, "it is extremely helpful to the association and to the postoffice if returns are made before the heavy rush of Christmas mail begins. We are grateful to those who send in their checks promptly."

Mrs. Webb said that among contributions received the past two weeks many contributors expressed thanks to the organization for issuing the seals and wished for the success of the sale.

The county organization is affiliated with state and national anti-tuberculosis organizations. Money raised through the sale of Christmas seals is used to battle tuberculosis.

Mrs. Harry Graef is the Circleville chairman. Places of business and civic groups are being solicited by a special committee composed of Mrs. Boyd Stout, chairman, Mrs. George Wharton, Mrs. Frank Barnhill, Jr., Mrs. Vernon Hawks, Mrs. Ralph Bennington, Mrs. Frank Wantz, Mrs. Robert Vandervort and Mrs. E. R. Bennett.

Mrs. Webb said that in 1947, financed by funds raised during the 1946 Christmas season, the organization paid for five tonsillectomies, 28 pairs of glasses, 35 pneumothorax and electro-rax refills, 32 chest X-rays and examinations, skin tests, and tuberculin for skin testing, nursing for tuberculosis patients, milk, printing, postage, executive secretary's salary and postoffice box rental.

It was also stated that all selectees rejected for military service because of lung ailment have been re-x-rayed and reexamined by the county health department. The examinations were paid for by the tuberculosis association.

Political and religious differences have often been marked by the form of hats. The Puritans of the reign of Charles I adopted the steeple hat, high and narrow, with a broad brim, untrimmed. The Cavaliers wore a lower and broader crown, with a feather stuck on one side.

BONY KNEES AND SHORTS

Lad Is Off For Trek Through Vast Jungles

By JAMES POWERS
EN ROUTE TO CAPE TOWN, Dec. 10—If my former mentors at St. Thomas Military Academy in St. Paul, Minn., could see me now, either they or I would be very much chagrined.

They maintained, more in sorrow than in anger, that I was not cut out for the military, or rugged life. At the same weight (145) and height (6 feet one) as I am today, and a posture more concave than convex, they said they admired my spirit but it wasn't enough.

The military authorities during the war agreed. They said not only was I a mess physically, but I had a hole in the head where I didn't need it. My eardrum wasn't just punctured, it was non-existent. Very interesting and all that, but don't look at us, they said.

For those reasons, all concerned will either snicker rudely or swear it's two other people when I don my pith helmet and break for the African brush. Which I intend to do. I am on my way to Africa with the Gatti-Hallcraft Expedition.

I'M NOT GOING to stay as long as Trader Horn, but six or eight months is a long time. That's how long the group commanded by Attilio Gatti is going to take to push through fabulous country such as the Mountains of the Moon, the big game country of Uganda and some unexplored territory of British East Africa.

Eleven years ago in military school, I felt silly in my uniform. Today I feel silly in my jungle uniform, which goes under the euphemism of "colonial clothes."

These bony knees were not designed for shorts. Any half-way ambitious snake will have no trouble finding the blood stream in my shanks.

I may be safe from discerning lions, if they take a second look before they charge. But I'm sure that being in a different weight class will mean the conflict is called off.

There is something about the average American male, except possibly those in California, which is more progressive, that revolts at the strange or bizarre in clothing.

Possibly the re are men who can wear a pith helmet and get away with it. I am not one.

My friends not only laughed

OEA Booming For State Funds For Kindergarten Classes

COLUMBUS, Dec. 10—The educational council of the Ohio Education Association is urging that permission be given to use state funds in the establishment of kindergarten classes.

At the present, schools are eligible to participate in state money for kindergarten pupils only after the kindergarten system has been put in operation. The council report said:

"Since lack of funds primarily prevents school boards from expanding the elementary program to include the kindergarten level, the state fails in its responsibility to give equal public school opportunity to every child in Ohio."

A survey of cities and exempted village school districts conducted by the group showed that in 40 percent of the communities where there are no kindergarten classes, space is available but funds do not permit this extension of the school program.

RESEARCH studies have shown, the report said, that kindergarten children progress faster in later grades and have a lower rate of failure.

MINOR SUIT GAMES HARD
TAKING eleven tricks is a lot more difficult proposition, as a generally, even at your best suit, than scoring nine at No Trumps if you have some sort of stopper in every suit. That is why so many good players strain to reach No Trump games, when they have great minor suit length and strength. Sometimes the best of them will try it without a stopper in some particular suit, if they can infer from their partner's bidding that he is likely to have a stopper in it, or even cards which combined with his own will produce a stopper.

There were many other variations of bidding on this deal, in a tournament. One South got into 5-Clubs and went down two for bottom score. There the spade tops were scored, the heart 9 put East in with the A and a spade return caused South to ruff with an honor, which thereby set up West's 10 for a trick. The 5-Diamonds declarers went down one, losing three tricks in the majors. Everybody who got into 3-No Trumps made it, plus at least one extra trick. The highest North-South score was where West decided to lead the heart 9. East played the 10 to keep his A ready to kill the dummy's Q, so South won with the K. Six tricks each in the two minors then gave him a total of thirteen tricks. The defense of course could have taken three major tricks with top cards, if they had started that way. South's No Trump bid, a shooter which won him the top, was based on the fact that clubs and diamonds probably could be run and the majors were probably stopped. He himself had hearts safe if they were opened, and he inferred from North's bidding that some sort of spade honor was probably in his hand, as proved to be the case. Having the J himself, he needed to find only a secondary honor there to protect against the suit.

John Brown, co-starred with Louise Erickson on the popular NBC family comedy series "A Date With Judy," announced completion of a swimming pool at his Beverly Hills home this week.

People around New York keep telephoning Bob Hawk and asking about the Scotch "lady stooze" who appeared on his NBC comedy quiz recently. For the sake of the record, Hawk has never had a "stooze," and if some of the contestants, drawn from the studio audience just prior to air time, sound like skillful comics, that's a happy coincidence, that's all. The Scotch lady in this case was Miss Arabella McLay, a middle-aged radio fan, who has resided in this country 30 years. She's a matron in an automaton takes care of children while their parents are eating—and has never been closer to pro-essional entertaining than you have been to Stalin!

Meredith Willson's special Christmas Seal program is being released nationally soon through transcription on hundreds of local stations. Featured are his orchestra, the "Talking People" pianist Paulena Carter and Josef Marais and Miranda, South African folk singers.

CBS Newscaster Bob Garred expects to be the first father in Hollywood to greet Santa Claus on Christmas morning. He plans to awaken with his wife and daughter at 3:30 a. m. so that he'll have time to unwrap presents before he has to leave home for his 7:30 a. m. newscast.

Lassie, famed M-G-M canine actor and star of her own Sunday ABC radio show, this week began to receive Christmas cards from all over the U. S., many of them signed with paw prints.

TB Seal Sale Nets $1,735 In First Two Weeks Of Drive

Collection Half Way To Goal

$3,500 Needed By Association

First two weeks of the 41st annual sale of Christmas seals in Circleville and Pickaway county netted $1,735.60, it was disclosed Wednesday by Mrs. C. E. Webb, executive secretary of the Pickaway County Tuberculosis and Health Association.

The sale began Nov. 24, with the mailing of the Christmas seals, and it will continue through Christmas.

Conducted each year during December, the sale is the only appeal made by the organization to raise funds with which to finance its tuberculosis prevention and control program.

The $1,735.60 raised during the first two weeks, Mrs. Webb said, represents about 50 percent of the campaign goal of $3,500. The quota is based on estimated operating expenses for 1948.

"ALTHOUGH the sale will continue until Christmas," Mrs. Webb asserted, "it is extremely helpful to the association and to the postoffice if returns are made before the heavy rush of Christmas mail begins. We are grateful to those who send in their checks promptly."

Mrs. Webb said that among contributions received the past two weeks many contributors expressed thanks to the organization for issuing the seals and wished for the success of the sale.

The county organization is affiliated with state and national anti-tuberculosis organizations. Money raised through the sale of Christmas seals is used to battle tuberculosis.

Mrs. Harry Graef is the Circleville chairman. Places of business and civic groups are being solicited by a special committee composed of Mrs. Boyd Stout, chairman, Mrs. George Wharton, Mrs. Frank Barnhill, Jr., Mrs. Vernon Hawks, Mrs. Ralph Bennington, Mrs. Frank Wanz, Mrs. Robert Vandervort and Mrs. E. R. Bennett.

Mrs. Webb said that in 1947, financed by funds raised during the 1946 Christmas season, the organization paid for five tonsillectomies, 28 pairs of glasses, 35 pneumothorax and clostridium refills, 32 chest X-rays and examinations, skin tests, and tuberculin for skin testing, nursing for tuberculosis patients, milk, printing, postage, executive secretary's salary and postoffice box rental.

It was also stated that all selectees rejected for military service because of lung ailment have been re-x-rayed and reexamined by the county health department. The examinations were paid for by the tuberculosis association.

Political and religious differences have often been marked by the form of hats. The Puritans of the reign of Charles I adopted the steeple hat, high and narrow, with a broad brim, untrimmed. The Cavaliers wore a lower and broader crown, with a feather stuck on one side.

BONY KNEES AND SHORTS

Lad Is Off For Trek Through Vast Jungles

By JAMES POWERS
EN ROUTE TO CAPE TOWN, Dec. 10—If my former mentors at St. Thomas Military Academy in St. Paul, Minn., could see me now, either they or I would be very much chagrined.

They maintained, more in sorrow than in anger, that I was not cut out for the military, or rugged life. At the same weight (145) and height (6 feet one) as I am today, and a posture more concave than convex, they said they admired my spirit but it wasn't enough.

The military authorities during the war agreed. They said not only was I a mess physically, but I had a hole in the head where I didn't need it. My eardrum wasn't just punctured, it was non-existent. Very interesting and all that, but don't look at us, they said.

For those reasons, all concerned will either snicker rudely or swear it's two other people when I don my pith helmet and break for the African brush.

Which I intend to do. I am on my way to Africa with the Gatti-Hallier Expedition.

I'M NOT GOING to stay as long as Trader Horn, but six or eight months is a long time. That's how long the group commanded by Attilio Gatti is going to take to push through fabulous country such as the Mountains of the Moon, the big game country of Uganda and some unexplored territory of British East Africa.

Eleven years ago in military school, I felt silly in my uniform. Today I feel silly in my jungle uniform, which goes under the euphemism of "colonial clothes."

These bony knees were not designed for shorts. Any half-way ambitious snake will have no trouble finding the blood stream in my shanks.

I may be safe from discerning lions, if they take a second look before they charge. But I'm sure that being in a different weight class will mean the conflict is called off.

There is something about the average American male, except possibly those in California, which is more progressive, that revolts at the strange or bizarre in clothing.

Possibly the re are men who can wear a pith helmet and get away with it. I am not one. My friends not only laughed

OEA Booming For State Funds For Kindergarten Classes

COLUMBUS, Dec. 10—The educational council of the Ohio Education Association is urging that permission be given to use state funds in the establishment of kindergarten classes.

At the present, schools are eligible to participate in state money for kindergarten pupils only after the kindergarten system has been put in operation. The council report said:

"Since lack of funds primarily prevents school boards from expanding the elementary program to include the kindergarten level, the state fails in its responsibility to give equal public school opportunity to every child in Ohio."

A survey of cities and exempted village school districts conducted by the group showed that in 40 percent of the communities where there are no kindergarten classes, space is available but funds do not permit this extension of the school program.

RESEARCH studies have shown, the report said, that kindergarten children progress faster in later grades and have a lower rate of failure.
